Advising Philosophy

Millie Ling-Tsai advises for both the Biological Sciences and Molecular and Medical Microbiology majors. She strives to teach and arm undergraduates with tools and knowledge towards self-efficacy in making informed decisions that will help empower students with skills necessary to accomplish academic and professional aspirations. She uses holistic advisement services that meet each individual’s unique needs. Millie coaches’ students in reaching their full potential by connecting them to study abroad, internships, and career opportunities available both on and off campus. She is passionate about guiding students in consideration of their life goals by helping them relate their experiences, interests, skills and values to career paths and the nature and purpose of higher education. Being able to inspire and make a difference in an individual’s life is the best part of her job.
